

Measuring Instrument Directive (MID); what is its affect on the Water Industry?

12th January '05
NWML Teddington,

Co-sponsored by the NWML

The MID affects all measurements where a transaction takes place. (Some one sells something to some one else).

This half day Workshop is intended to set the scene and to explore the emerging regulations and the opportunities and challenges for suppliers and users

Those involved with the implementation of the Directive suggest that the Water Industry and its suppliers are late in understanding the implications and in helping to develop the regulations.

This is a valuable opportunity to engage with those who are dealing with the Directive and its consequent regulations and to influence future directions.

Designers, marketing, planners and asset managers will find this an invaluable opportunity to estimate future needs and costs.
